The Didsbury Light Horse Show wasn't just for the light horses. Don Irwin brought his heavy draft horses to be part of the opening ceremonies on the Saturday evening of the long weekend.

Local doctor pleased with agreement

By Ceilidh McClurg

Local doctors are pleased with the outcome of negotiations regarding on-call pay for rural physicians.

Dr. Richard James at College Green Medical Centre says, "I think it is a compromise... I think we are all happy with it."

The compromise that he is speaking about was reached last week. Doctors, who previously received nothing for the many on-call hours that rural physicians put in, will receive $400 per 24 hour period they have to be available as of Oct. 1. Or they will receive $17 per hour for anything less than 24 hours.

For local doctors this would add up to about $2000 extra in income each month for working one on-call shift per week, and one weekend per month.

There are currently three doctors in Didsbury, but there are five on the on-call rotation including two doctors from Carstairs. They are on-call from 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. each day and all weekend.

In addition to the to the payments, doctors will be able to charge on a fee-for-service basis as they have always done.

Dr. James says, "I think it is a good incentive to attract doctors into rural locations which is something that has been lacking so far." As compared to a city family doctor, rural family doctors put in a great deal of on-call time, and James says that is often a deterrent to new doctors looking to set up or join a practice.

Dr. Peter Lindsay, president of the Alberta Section of Rural Medicine, who had a great stake in these discussions said after the agreement, "The resolution of this important on-call issue means a great deal to rural physicians. It recognizes their lifestyle and economic challenges, and will go a long way toward helping Alberta to attract and keep physicians in rural areas."

Brassard ready to be back in the limelight

Roy's ready to run for trustee.

By Ceilidh McClurg
Local longtime politician,

Roy Brassard who retired from Provincial politics only last year, is coming out of retirement.

Brassard has announced his intentions to run for school board trustee for the Didsbury area.

But, the decision to give up some of the free time he has just recently come to know, was not an easy one.

There were suggestions by community members as early as this winter and spring that he might make a good trustee, even his daughter suggested that he might bring something important to the board.

What he would bring is experience in politics and lots of it. He served as a trustee in 1978 for Didsbury, before moving into the rural area. He then served in the provincial legislature as MLA for 11 years.

Brassard says that he has been on both sides of the fence and feels that he could bring some perspective to the board.

He says, "I think there has been a lot of changes in our school board, and I have some difficulty with some of those changes."

He says he believes that some of the concerns that have been on the school board for some time are now behind them, however there are some that still need dealing with.

"I have a lot of concerns that deal with the day to day routine of things."

Brassard's day to day routine could change very much if he is elected on Oct. 19, which is voting day for school board, county council, and town council.

He is not going into this blindly, he says. Brassard and his wife Sheila had an "in-depth" discussion while they were away on holidays to consider the consequences and benefits of him coming out of retirement.

"The decision Sheila and I made is based on the fact that I have the time, I have the interest, and I have three grandchildren in the system," says Brassard.

"I honestly feel that I can bring representation for our community to the board."

Brassard and his wife have lived in Didsbury for almost 25 years. They were once business owners in town when they owned a car dealership and a book store.

Didsbury man appointed to RHA5

By Ceilidh McClurg

Jim Turner of Didsbury has been appointed as one of the new members of the local health authority board.

He was one of the ten appointments to the Region Five Health Authority Board that was announced last week by Health Minister Halvar Jonson.

Another local appointee is Ed Johnston of Water Valley.

These men, along with the eight other members were among the recommendations made to the minister by the Nomination Review Panel which was an eight member board with representation from across the province.

The local health Task Force, sent their recommendations to the nominating committee, one of which was Turner.

Turner has held senior management positions in a number of college settings, served on the Olds College Board of Directors and the Didsbury Business Revitalization Committee. He has also been a director on the board of directors for the YMCA.

Johnston was most recently employed as president of the Calgary and area United Way. Has been active in both health and social services fields, has chaired a Family and Social Services Review Panel, been a member of a hospital board, and a member of numerous other social service and civic boards.

Minister Jonson said after the announcement, "RHA boards are among the hardest working boards in the province. I would like to thank all the members of the Regional Health Authorities for their tireless contributions over the past two years."

Four of the members on the board are new, including Alayna Doore of Siksika, and John Sparling of Drumheller. The rest were previously on the board and have been reappointed. Those people are Terry Peterson of Strathmore, Myrna Bauman of Three Hills, Donald Guidolin of Drumheller, Viola Olsen of Sedalia, Carol Wiens of Hanna and James Wilson of Drumheller.

Region Five covers the area including the communities of Carbon, Carstairs, Cereal, Cluny, Cremona, Didsbury, Drumheller, Gleichen, Hanna, Rockyford, Strathmore and Three Hills.

In addition to the fee for on-call services that will help with the rural physician problem, the province has agreed to restructure the Rural Physician Action Plan which is in place to deal with the issue. There are no specifics given in terms of what that restructuring will be.

James says becoming a rural doctor is something that really has to be done knowing what is in store, long hours, a huge commitment.

"But, we realize that it is part of our duties as a rural doctor. You have to know that when you decide that is what you want to do. You really have to go in with your eyes open," says James.

However he adds, "It is a lifestyle issue." It may take time away from family, tie down plans for weekends or holidays, or any other number of things that might be frustrating to a new doctor. However, James says the monetary reward will help a new doctor make that lifestyle decision.

The provincial Minister of Health Halvar Jonson apparently recognizes that. He said of the newly reached agreement, "There are significant economic circumstances involved in providing emergency on-call services in rural areas for physicians and their families. This plan recognizes this and compensates physicians while ensuring that Albertans living in these areas receive continuous emergency on-call services."

The local doctors participated in a province wide job action when they closed their offices for a day in protest of the on-call payment issue, and the Rural Physicians Action Plan.

The Alberta Medical Association and the province had come to a salary agreement before then, however the issues of on-call and rural physicians was left out of the original agreement and a timeline was set to deal with them.

The negotiations were regarding these issues were between a working group comprised of members of the Alberta Section of Rural Medicine, the Alberta Medical Association and Alberta Health representatives.

As of Apr. 1 of 2000, rural doctors will see the payment for on-call service jump to $21 per hour, or $500 for a full 24 hour period.

All of this will cost the government $4.7 million for the 1998-99 fiscal year.

RCMP Notes

Lives threatened

It was a scary night for some party goers early Saturday morning near Sundre. After a disagreement involving many people, a man grabbed a .22 calibre rifle and threatened to kill people around him. Someone at the party managed to wrestle the firearm from the culprit and was hidden away. Police were called to the scene when the man tried to find the gun again.

Luckily, no shots were actually fired, and no one was injured in the incident.

Kevin Allan Shippelt, 30, of Sundre was charged with several offences including breach of his probation. He was released from custody on bail and will appear in Didsbury court on Oct. 5.

Crash landed

The Sundre Airport was the scene of an airplane crash this past Saturday. At 2:20 p.m., Jeffery Leroy Colp, of Calgary and his seven year old son crash landed at the airport while enroute from Calgary to the Sundre area. Police report that the aircraft struck a power line while attempting to locate a grass landing strip about 7 kilometres south of Sundre. Neither Colp or his son were injured.

Sundre RCMP and the Canadian Transport Safety Board are investigating the accident.

Fees are getting out of hand, says Fader

By Ceilidh McClurg

Fees are too high. The new superintendent of Chinook's Edge School Division has wasted no time in addressing issues that he feels strongly about.

He suggested to the board that they take the issue of school fees to their planned meeting between Alberta School Boards Association and MLA's because he feels that due to government cutbacks, the schools are being forced to put more and more of the financial burden on parents.

Almost every school has started charging school fees to the parents in some form or another. However, Fader says it is getting to be too much for families who are not financially advantaged.

He says he has already received some phone calls this year regarding the level of fees charged by individual schools.

Fader said, "We have to provide service and programs to our students. Course fees and additional course fees are in some cases way too high and I think the provincial government should do something about it."

He said that because schools are forced to charge these fees, it makes it tough for some families to have their children enrolled in the higher cost option programs such as industrial arts, where there is a fee on top of regular school fees, and students also have to buy their own materials.

He said it was getting to the point that it could very well verge on an "elitist system."

But, he added, "We are really caught because we have minimal funding and we have to charge fees."

He suggested that the government should have some educational dollars earmarked to give to schools who don't charge school fees.

Local principal of Didsbury High School, Mark Leggette said he agrees that it is a catch 22 situation, whereby to offer the courses the school has to get the dollars from somewhere, but he finds that it is tough for some parents to be able to pay those costs.

"It is another nickel and dime thing," he says of the cutbacks that have resulted in the need. "It would be nice to be able to eliminate them, but we need it to run the programs."

Leggette says it is hard for the school to have to collect the fees, especially when they know it is a struggle for some of the parents in the community.

"We have become a collection agency," he says dryly.

Current school fees at DHS are a basic $75 for textbooks and materials for the core subjects, and $6 per credit (courses are usually five or six credits) for options plus the cost of all of their materials. So for example a student who is taking the basic subjects and three options in a year could have to pay about $165.

He suggested that maybe it should all be included in the taxes that are collected and sent to the schools, but admitted that the province would probably raise school taxes in that case.

Fader and assistant superintendent Jim Gibbons, had other concerns regarding the funding of students.

For example Gibbons said that the government cut out the rural equalization grant that used to be available with student loans. That grant would take into consideration that rural students who wanted to go onto advanced education would likely have to live away from home, and would receive some money to help balance those costs. Fader believes that the grant was cut with little to no consultation and thought as to how it would affect students living in rural areas.

Trustees expressed their concern that even the required supplies for some basic courses aren't provided by funding through the province. For example, graphing calculators that are required for any senior level mathematics course. These calculators can cost more than $100, and some students can't afford that cost. Gibbons explained that some schools are trying to attain class sets through fund-raising and other means, however that is not sufficient because a student can not take them home to do work.

On the fund-raising issue, trustee Susan Denischuk said it is a good idea to ask the community to get involved in their children's education, however, she believes it has been taken too far when the community is expected to pick up even the most basic costs like textbooks and calculators.

"I think our little communities are really being pushed to the nth degree... We need to recognize our communities (for what they put towards education), but they are being pressured to their limit," said Denischuk.

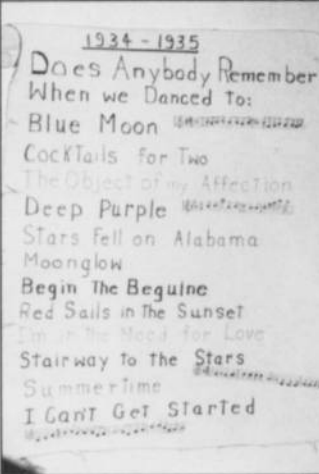

It has been suggested by the province that the schools and the school board use their credits at the learning resource centre that is run by Alberta Education, to purchase materials such as the calculators or text books. However, trustees were quick to point out that their credits at the learning resource centre have been cut, just another way to take away education funding without actually taking away dollars, they said.

Trustees said that the boards in the province should take these concerns to the province in whatever way possible, including through the Alberta School Boards Association directors meeting with MLAs that is coming soon.

Fader concluded, "We have a problem that needs to be addressed, but we need to do it jointly at both the province and at the local level."

REALLY REUNITING
The DHS Wartime Students Reunion held last weekend was a time for memories, music, and most of all reuniting old friendships. The wartime students are checking with Guinness World Book of Records to ascertain if they hold the record for reunions.

Sundre mourns a mother's loss

By Ceilidh McClurg

A family has been torn apart, and the heartache may seem unbearable at times, but the support of the community of Sundre is making it a little bit easier for the sole survivor of a horrible highway wreck.

A mother and wife, Kimberley Stauffer is mourning the death of her husband, Trevor Stauffer, and two children Dallas, 5, and Emma, 3.

A memorial service was held at James River Bible Camp last week, where Stauffer was surrounded by family and friends.

She lost her family Sept. 4 during a family motorcycling trip. Trevor was riding ahead of Kimberly with the two children in a side car on Highway 2 near Leduc. The sidecar clipped the rear end of another vehicle and Trevor was thrown from his bike. He and his two children died at the scene.

All three were then struck by another vehicle who was unable to stop in time to avoid the accident.

Kimberly was also involved in the accident but sustained only minor injuries and was treated and released from Leduc Hospital.

As the Sundre community comes to grips with the tragic loss of three of their own they are coming together for support and offering it to Kimberly.

A trust fund has been started in her name. Anyone wishing to donate can do so at the Bank of Montreal, Alberta Treasury Branch or the Credit Union in Sundre.

Another candidate enters race

By Ceilidh McClurg

Art Mercer has added his name to the list of candidates for the Didsbury municipal election.

Mercer, owner and operator of the local health food store, Mercer's Mercantile, says this was not a quick decision that he made.

In fact, he has been considering the possibility since about February of this year. He first thought about running for councillor when someone suggested it to him, and that got him thinking about it.

With support from his wife of 32 years, Teresa, and his nominators, he is in the race. The couple has lived in Didsbury for about three and a half years after moving from Elkford to open his business here.

He says, "Of all the places we've lived, this is the first place that we have called home. Although another reason brought us to town, we saw the need for a health food store and took the opportunity. Even though we were strangers, in no time at all we were accepted and felt a part of the community. It is for this reason I felt I should give back some of my time and effort. Therefore, I would consider it an honor to serve as a council member for the next term."

Although Mercer doesn't have any experience in local government, he has served on a number of committees and executives including the local Lion's Club and Chamber of Commerce.

He says because of his personal interest, his number one platform during the campaign will be the issue of the environment.

"I would like to see less land use, and more composting," he says. He believes that Didsbury should have a "blue box" type of program for all residents, not to cut out the work of the Lion's recycling centre, but to work in conjunction with it. He also says that he strongly believes putting land to good use where it can be reclaimed.

He says that would like to promote the small town atmosphere that Didsbury offers. He wants to attract growth, but in a steady manner that would maintain that.

Another topic that he sees as important is to provide support for small home-based businesses like his own.

Mercer calls himself a "middle of the road" candidate who supports honesty, integrity and family values.

Count your blessings

Cellidh
McCLURG

That statement was one that was often said in my house.

"Mom, this meatloaf tastes funny, I don't want to eat it," I'd say.

"Count your blessings," she respond.

"Dad I don't want to clean my room."

"Count your blessings dear."

"Mom, I hate it when you make me wear this ugly dress."

"Count your blessings."

As a kid I never actually thought about the actual words that were in that statement. To me, they were a polite way of my parents telling me to shut up. It was only with some maturity that I realized that they actually meant those words, all three precious ones. They meant to be thankful that I had food on my table. They meant to be thankful that I had a roof over my head. They meant to be thankful that there were clothes on my back.

What a novel idea. But, I can only realize that now that I have lived a few more years. I want Didsburians to count their blessings, and I hope in doing so, they come to realize that although they may not drive the nicest car, it is a blessing that they have one at all.

But, most of all I want Didsburians to realize that one of the best ways to count your blessings, is by showering them on someone else.

Just as last year, I will be running an adopt-a-family program in town. This a program where a family or a business chooses to bless someone else by providing someone less fortunate with a brighter Christmas. They would be assigned a family (names are all kept anonymous), who could use something under the tree on the magic morning. Maybe, it is your neighbor that could use this help, or you would like to be one of those who shares the wealth. In any instance, please call me at 335-9802 or 335-3301, and I will explain the program further. I am giving lots of notice this year, so please Didsbury, COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS!

Notes from Nigeria: Learning and sharing together

Dan and Janet Snyder are Didsburians who are missionaries in Nigeria. Their letter home appears in the Review every week.

Dear Friends,

Last Sunday night we had "Connections" which is our Middle School youth group. After the evening service we were to have games on the courts, which of course are outside. Well, it had rained quite hard and was still drizzling, but we decided to go for it. Most of the thirty or so students who came played indoor soccer to avoid getting totally soaked. Our fourth-grade teacher gave a good devotional thought. Our students enjoy physical activity.

At Hillcrest School we have nine-week grading periods. We're halfway through the first one so we send out progress reports to alert parents to problems or pleasant surprises. Friday afternoon all the students got notes to take home to their parents. Most of these were positive but some expressed concern about lack of academic achievement. Saturday the High School Varsity volleyball teams hosted a mini-tournament with six teams participating. Our teams didn't win very often, but they were playing against adults from the State Sports Council and the University of Jos as well as some church teams. Two of our eighth-grade girls got to play with the women from the Sports Council. They were treated very nicely, and encouraged when they made mistakes. It was a very good experience for them. Just to give you some idea of the nationalities in our school, these two girls are from Eritrea and Lebanon. Janet's discipleship group met on Thursday and again discussed dating. It was a lively discussion that got off the subject at times but even those side discussions were good. The girls want to know how the Bible affects their lives and give all sorts of examples from their own lives. One discussion concerned swearing. Words that are considered swearing or so crude as to be unacceptable in normal usage in North America are commonly-used words here. We had to discuss the context in which the word was used and whether it was a swear word in that context. Three of the girls stayed for about an half hour afterwards. They were quite concerned about some of the behaviour of some of their classmates and their own temptation to do the same things. There has been quite a lot of cheating on tests in their class recently and one of the new teachers was having difficulty getting the class to behave. Some of the kids were really taking advantage of his inexperience. These girls not only expressed their concerns to Janet but offered some good suggestions as to what could be done to alleviate some of the problems. They gave Janet permission to share their concerns with the other Middle school teachers as long as she didn't tell their names. Janet passed on their concerns and suggestions, especially those for the new teacher. He put some of their suggestions into practice on Friday. Two of the girls told Janet after school that class was much better. It is satisfying for the girls to have their concerns taken seriously and to see changes come about as a result. Hopefully, they will continue to feel free to share with Janet. Thanks for letting us share with you.

Sincerely,
Dan & Janet

Grazing Lease Review causing anger in areas

From the office of the Western Stock Grower's Association

Six hundred angry leaseholders came together in Youngstown to voice their concerns over the interim report of the grazing lease review committee, said Norman Ward, President of the Western Stock Growers' Association. In attendance for the first half of the meeting was Tom Thurber, Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Development, and local MLA, Shirley McLellan, Minister of Community Development, who received a very strong message of displeasure over Tom Thurber's interim report.

Their main concerns, said Ward, were over the cap on industrial compensation, control over access and the devaluation of their equity. These are all very valid concerns, said Ward, and they communicated their frustration and anger at what they perceive as an attack on their livelihoods.

As soon as the interim report was made public, said Ward, leaseholders across Alberta were put into an extremely untenable position. Leases are legitimate assets and as such are part of the overall financial picture of any enterprise. Imposing any kind of changes in the contract between the lessor and lessee ultimately will negatively impact the equity. For example, with over 6.2 million acres under grazing lease dispositions and approximately 5,600 leaseholders this allows for an average of 1,114 acres per leaseholder. If each acre under a grazing disposition contract is devalued by even $100 per acre said Ward, then the Alberta government has effectively pulled out over $600 million of equity from the agricultural industry. Furthermore, said Ward, this will devalue deeded land that sits beside it.

All Albertans need to be aware of the possible confiscation of rancher's assets, through legislative changes to the public lands act.

The Western Stock Growers' Association will be meeting with Thurber's committee on Sept. 23 to discuss the interim report. In the meantime, we will continue to support community meetings to allow leaseholders to have a frank discussion on the ramifications of this report, Ward said.

There is confusion about the ABC and CWB

Dear Editor,

The September 11, 1998 issue of the Mountain View County News contained a letter to the editor from Robert Ponto of the soon-to-be-defunct Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) Advisory Board. In it he chastises the Alberta Barley Commission (ABC) for objecting to the CWB's plan that encourages grain companies to pay for malting barley at the driveway and suggests they are simply against the CWB doing what they should have been doing years ago. Lord knows the ABC can fight their own battles, but since other farmers have told me they are confused about this program, let me tell you the facts, as I know them.

The ABC and the Western Barley Growers Association (WBGAA) have no problem at all with elevator companies paying the CWB initial price up front for malt barley purchases, on delivery at the elevator rather than the way it usually has been done - on delivery at the final destination. That led to malt being rejected and sold as feed barley constantly upon the whim of the buyer, and left the farmer taking all the risks, with the Elevator Company and the CWB and the buyer taking none. By paying the initial up front at the elevator upon delivery, the elevator company take some of the risk, although in the end farmers are still taking the bulk of it while they wait to see if it is ultimately rejected later. As well, the farmer still has to wait for his/her final payment to come down the pipe from the CWB up to 18 months later. The WBGAA has been calling for a better malt system for years, and this is a small step towards one, but a step forward nonetheless.

The objections that the WBGAA and the ABC have to this CWB program is that they are paying all elevator companies an incentive of $1.50 per tonne from farmer's money in the malt barley pool fund to encourage them to do this. In other words they are using OUR money to bribe private grain companies to pay us part of OUR money up front. This isn't the stupidest part of the whole scheme. The whole idea of paying the initial for malt barley at the driveway was thought up by ConAgra Grain, and soon followed by the UGG, who thought it would be a competitive way to encourage farmers to deliver malt barley to their elevators. These two companies were doing it at no cost to the farmer and with no incentive from the CWB, just to get malting volume, and covering the risk themselves! My guess is that a certain other group of elevator companies that had the word "Pool" in their name got the CWB to jump on the bandwagon and provide it for everyone at farmer's expense, but I could be wrong. Perhaps the CWB just did it out of the goodness of their heart for their old friends, the same way we all paid for free protein testers in elevators a few years ago (UGG had bought their own before the CWB gave everyone a free one at farmer's expense). Perhaps when the CWB elections roll around, this is a question you might ask potential candidates for the new Board of Directors - why do farmers need a monopoly buyer/seller that stamps out competition for farmer's grain sales?

Problem with the banking system

Dear Editor,

The destruction of the Canadian dollar was pre-ordained long ago when, on June 8, 1913, our government turned the creation over to the commercial banks along with our gold reserves.

The present inflation is only a tool of the bankers and our government to destroy our economy and push us toward a one-currency world.

Sec. 457 of the 1991 bank act gives the right to the bankers to create any amount of money at this time with no fractional reserve. That is, no money backing when they loan out in cheques and credits and through credit cards.

Now that is what is called counterfeiting and even though all those silly Members of Parliament bow and scrape when they are in the presence of Gordon Thiessen, the governor of the Bank of Canada. If those twits had to make their paycheques stretch the way ordinary workers must, you would see a screeching halt put on the funny money game of the banks. As it is, they just give themselves a raise in the back rooms of parliament and try to make sure there is no discussion. The present Bank of Canada, who supervise the issuing of our money, have no members of the government on the board who have any vote on how the money is issued.

What you will hear at the church is "render unto Caesar what is Caesar's," which comes from the Bible of course. But hold on a minute. Israel had been conquered by the Romans and the people were forced to pay tribute. When I looked around Canada the last time, we were supposed to be a free country, and I don't remember being conquered.

So why should we fork over a few billion to the international monetary fund to buoy up the Korean economy when the Koreans just turn around and give the money to the international bankers who probably sold the Korean money short to destroy the economy in the first place?

Same with Mexico a few years ago, and same with Indonesia at present.

Canada is six or seven hundred billion dollars in debt now and those wonder workers of the federal government are throwing out hard-earned taxes at the international parasites: the bankers.

In our country, how can we let those skunks pull in a billion or so each year while not creating one thumb tack or paperclip for Canada? All they have to do is silence a few Members of Parliament with our own money.

But, my friends, it gets even better. In the 1991 Bank Act, it says the banks may close their doors at any time after March of 1996. It says it in plain English as well. Golly, my friends, do you think they printed it by accident, or could they possibly have a surprise in mind for the complacent people of good old Canada?

Sincerely,
Dennis Combs, Olds

Wonderings of the heart

It can be a very exciting time when a young boy joins his first "cub pack".

For Jimmy it was a time he had been longing for at the first meeting, their leader welcomed them, and shared with them that they were expected to do a "good deed" for someone, each day.

The following week each boy was to share something he had been able to do for someone during the past week.

Meeting night arrived; Jimmy could hardly contain himself he squirmed and wiggled in his chair and finally it was his turn. The Cub Master turned to him and said "Well Jimmy, what good deed were you able to do this week".

Eager to share, Jimmy said, "I helped an old lady cross the street".

The leaders looked pleased, "Good for you Jimmy, these are the kind of things we should be doing".

"Yes" responded Jimmy, "and it wasn't easy because she didn't want to go".

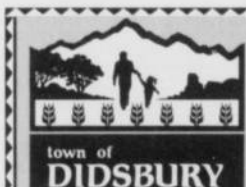

There are times when we allow ourselves to become so busy 'doing' we miss 'just being' what the other person needs.

Discussion paper on farm tax revisions

The MLA Farm Property Assessment Review Committee is seeking public input on proposed changes to how farmland is assessed and taxed. The committee released the "Discussion Paper on Farm Property Assessment and Taxation" on Sept. 9 and encouraged interested Albertans to comment on their recommendations and options.

The MLA Farm Property Assessment Review Committee, which was established in June 1997 by Municipal Affairs Minister Iris Evans, consists of committee chairman Richard Marz, MLA, Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills; Rob Loughheed, MLA, Clover Bar-Fort Saskatchewan; and Barry McFarland, MLA, Little Bow.

According to committee chair Marz, the discussion paper addresses issues relating to the assessment of woodlots, land not used for farming and modern day farming practices that do not fit within the present definition of a farming operation.

"The present method of assessing farmland was developed in the early 1980s and only recognizes three types of farming practices - grain and oilseed dryland farming, ranching and irrigated land farming. There have been significant changes in the agricultural industry since the 1970s," said Marz.

"For example, intensive livestock operations are not covered under the present definition which focuses on the production of field crops. All farm buildings, other than residences, are exempt from assessment. As a result intensive cattle, poultry or hog operations are exempt from property taxation in rural municipalities."

Some of the recommendations include adopting a new definition of farming operations; assessing woodlots based on their productive value; providing municipalities the flexibility to apply different tax rates on farm property depending on the type of farming operation; and assessing land not used for farming operations based on market value.

Copies of the Discussion Paper are available to the public through municipal offices, MLA constituency offices and Alberta Municipal Affairs' web page at <http://www.gov.ab.ca/ma>, or by phoning 422-1377.

"Albertans can provide their feedback by completing the comment sheets at the back of the discussion paper and mailing them to the address provided, or by attending one of the public meetings," Marz said.

"We are making the discussion paper available well in advance of the public meetings so Albertans will have an ample opportunity to review the paper and provide valuable input to the options and recommendations."

Albertans will have until Nov. 18 to complete the comment sheets. Formal written submissions will also be accepted until the same date, according to Marz.

A public meeting will be held in Olds on Oct. 28 at 9 a.m. in the Legion Hall.

Following the public meetings and review of the written comments, the committee will make its final recommendations to the Standing Policy Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development. This is expected to take place in Spring 1999.

Reward offered

By Ceilidh McClurg

A local business says they are sick of waiting patiently to recover some property that was stolen from their company, and they are ready to do something about it.

Sun Craft Log Homes is offering a reward for information leading to the reclamation of very valuable, and unique items taken from their business in the Didsbury Industrial Park.

It was sometime between the hours of 5 p.m. on the Saturday and 12 p.m. on the Sunday that it is suspected that the crime occurred on Aug. 22 or 23.

An employee had been working the Saturday afternoon and was in and out of a blue shed, where many of the valuable custom made windows and doors are stored.

When he returned the next day and went back into the blue shed on the property, he noticed that there was considerably more room inside.

An inventory was taken and the owners realized that they had lost about $7000 in materials for their showhomes. There were 15 windows, and one custom made door. Sun Craft believes the door would be recognizable enough that if someone had seen it, they would recognize it (facsimile below).

Also noticed on the property after the theft, was that the fuel tank had been dragged towards a large hauling truck and that it appeared that the culprits had tried to get the truck running.

Ken Ahlf, of Sun Craft says, "It is probably a good thing they couldn't get it started because who knows what else they would have taken."

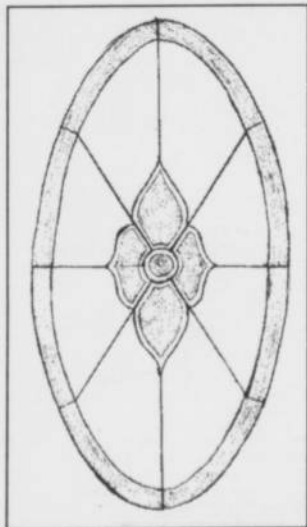

Because the items stolen were for a specific use, Ahlf says that he thinks the culprits knew what they were looking for, and may even have a potential buyer for the stolen property.

Ahlf, and owner of Sun Craft, Paddy Munro are asking locals to "keep their ear to the ground" and watch what is being used in new homes around the area. The purchaser may not have even known the products were stolen, and may be in the process of installing them somewhere.

Sun Craft is offering $500, for the information that leads to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

Munro is hoping that he will have the same luck that he had last time something was stolen off his property. He offered reward at that time, and the stolen item was later recovered.

Information can be called into Crimestoppers, or the local detachment of the RCMP.

Lifestyles

History of St. Cyprian's church

The history of any church or community building must surely start with a group of dedicated people. For St. Cyprian's 90 years into its life one can only imagine how an early group of Didsbury residents gathered, perhaps around a stove and gas lamps planning the first St. Cyprian's. Perhaps they attended St. John's Anglican Church in Olds on rare occasions as travelling was probably difficult. Any act of building and purchasing land is a sign of hope and confidence in the future. In summer 1908 28 single men helped with the construction. The first church was heated with a large coal heater and gas lamps were used.

A minister was hired, the Rev. Shore, and he made his home in what was then known as the McCulloch Block. This led to the first Anglican Bishop of Calgary, The Right Reverend Cyprian Pinkham coming to consecrate the new church. It is presumed that this was close to September 14 that year as that is St. Cyprian's Day in the calendar for those who acknowledge the contribution of saints. As Cyprian was a North African Bishop in the third century who was martyred under one of the Roman persecutions it is hard to know exactly why the church was dedicated to St. Cyprian.

In March 1911 two large inscribed wall charts were made. They were made by Henry Wright and one was inscribed with the ten commandments and the other with the Lord's Prayer and Apostles Creed. On the back it is noted that they were made for the "English Church" as the Church used to be part of the "Church of England in Canada" until the 1950s when it changed its name to Anglican Church, which in the 1990s is part of the World Wide Anglican Communion, just like the Episcopal Church in the U.S.A.

The Reverend John Orman who has been incumbent since February 1991 is the nineteenth person to hold this position, although there was an assistant in the early eighties when Didsbury was part of a wider parish with Olds and Sundre. Prior to 1987 priests of Didsbury were also priests of Olds and lived in Olds. Only four clergy have been in the parish more than five years, with the longest serving being Canon Jim Linster who served Olds, Sundre and Didsbury from 1971 to 1986. Sadly he passed on within a few months of retirement. From about 1912 until 1920 or 1921 occasional services were held by visiting ministers, and no doubt significant numbers of men were serving overseas.

One of the most moving stories about St. Cyprian's is about a family in the 1930s with no where to stay so they actually stayed in the church. Like many families at that time they were desperately short of resources but they did have three or four chairs. When they left the chairs were left as a gift, and three of them are still in use today.

In 1965 a long time dream was realized when a two level parish hall with washrooms and kitchens was started. It was completed in February 1966 and it has had regular use as a community facility, and for church meetings, groups, studies and suppers, etc. ever since.

1996 was another milestone when another dream was realized. It was the dream of replacing the 1908 church with a more modern one with modern heating and insulation. It is double the size of the previous church being approximately 2000 square feet and is joined on to the 1966 hall. Again an enormous volunteer effort was encouraged and while significant funds were raised it was also a lot cheaper than if everything had been contracted. It is paid for with no mortgage and now has two stain glass windows in and a third planned for later this year.

The history of a church is not just in the buildings, although they are the focal point for worship and gatherings of the community. The real history is in the lives and memories of many members, those who have passed on and those who are still active. It is in the memories of Christmas and Easter services, in the relationships formed in the ladies group. The Anglican Church Women and in confirmation classes, and study group. It is the memories of baptisms and funerals and weddings. This is what really makes the history as people gather week by week and month by month to worship God which is the prime purpose, and as witnesses to the community. Hopefully the spirit of Christianity then flows through all of these people as they go about their daily life and deal with life's challenges from a Christian perspective.

Famous artist to exhibit at Didsbury Municipal Library

Internationally acclaimed painter, Janet Mitchell creates "to say the truth of things in flowing paint." Of the same era as the Group of Seven, Janet Mitchell stands among the first generation of Calgary based artists responsible for introducing contemporary art ideas to this region during the 1940's. A Glimpse at Janet Mitchell is a delightful travelling exhibition consisting of 12 art works selected by the Muttart from the collection of the Alberta Foundation for the Arts.

This extraordinary artist painted with vitality and purpose until her death in 1998 at the age of 85. Her artwork combines the subtleties of abstraction, interests in local landscape, expressionism and primitivism with a childlike passion for colour. Her work has been likened to that of European painters Chagall, Klee and Matisse and American artist Stuart Davis. While such associations can be noted, Mitchell has evolved a style truly her own, utilising techniques of self-hypnosis and automatic drawing to release her powerful and personal expressions of fantasy, intuition and humour.

In 1988 Mitchell received an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from the University of Calgary. In her keynote speech she offered this advice: "No matter what your chosen career, take time to enjoy the simple things and escape from time to time from your workday existence to pursue something that will refresh you in spirit. To all of us, life brings recurring tragedies. To see and say the ridiculous and absurd seems to be what I desire most in my painting. I expect people to laugh with me and be happy."

A Glimpse at Janet Mitchell will be on display at the Didsbury Municipal Library in Didsbury from Sept. 18 to Oct. 19. We welcome your visit to view this entertaining and informative exhibition.

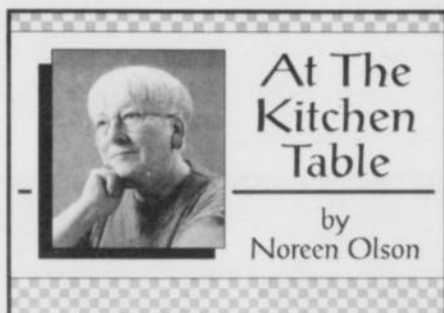

A Glimpse at Janet Mitchell is an exhibition organized and circulated by the Muttart Public Art Gallery of Calgary for the Alberta Foundation for the Arts Travelling Exhibition Program. The AFA Travelling Exhibition Program is financially supported by the Alberta Foundation for the Arts.

REVIEW 335-3301

I am a maker of lists. There are the short term lists; groceries, errands that need running, things for lodge, books I want to buy or get from the library. There are seasonal lists; plants and seeds I'd like to try, places I would like to go in the summer and Christmas lists, (I have Christmas lists that go back to when the kids wanted Tonka Toys and Winnie the Pooh). I have lists of possible columns and lists of long term needs and lists of names and organizations that I might want to contact in regard to a specific project. Then there is my Master List. This list is mostly of jobs and projects that need to be done very soon, people I should phone, write or visit, things that should be made, mended or sewn. Each Master List lasts about three months, by then most of the items have been crossed off and I transfer the uncrossed obligations to a new list, along with whatever else is pressing at the moment.

My lists are more than simple reminders, they are powerful psychological tools. It's a very bad day when I can't find something to knock off the list. Even if it's just, "take jelly down to cold room" or, "make up guest room bed." On the days that I take really important stuff off, the feeling of virtue may carry over until I reward myself by doing practically nothing the next day, while I catch up on some guilt free reading. I have been known to put things on the list after I have actually done them, because that gives me the satisfaction of crossing them off. I also break up large jobs into sections so that each undertaking is more manageable. "Edge flower beds," is a ten day job so I put down, "edge west bed," "clean up lupines," "edge peninsula" etc., etc.

I have been keeping a master list for a long, long time and mostly the items on the list have changed according to our changing lifestyle, but one entry, "gate sign," has moved from list to list for at least 20 years. The problem has not been in finding a nice tasteful gate sign, we have one of those up near the house. It says OLSON, Ralph and Noreen. The problem has been that I want a sign that names the farm and we have never been able to all agree on what the name should be. There are lovely spruce here and lots of springs. Spruce Springs was a possibility as was Seven Springs because it's alliterative, not because that's the actual number of springs, (we think there are between six and 10). But a campground near here put up a 'seven springs' sign and we didn't want to look like copycats so seven springs was a discard. "Long Lane Farm" was one of the kid suggestions in the days when they had to run for the school bus, and still aiming at alliteration, someone suggested "Potentilla Potential." We have a little creek and we thought of several names that involved the creek, but on the days when we had tried for three hours to get the calves across it, the creek inspired names were not what nice people would put on a gate sign. When the Norwegian relatives were here I had them translate things like, home place, family farm, sanctuary, shelter from the storm, but everything sounded too ethnic and for third and fourth generation Albertans a bit silly. So there was no name for the farm, and no gate sign and three or four times a year I moved the entry to another master list and wondered if I should just forget the whole thing.

Early this summer I made another master list and moved 'gate sign' for about the fiftieth time. Maybe I was feeling my own morality and wondering if I was running out of time, maybe some planet was aligned with the astrological symbol for gate signs. I checked newspaper ads and called Shelley Barkman at Rishell Signs in Carstairs. I took her some Norwegian Rosemaling patterns and some sketches and ideas that had been in my file for years. She made up several versions of my idea and Ralph and I chose the one we liked best. This is now Olson's GREENHAVEN farm, est. 1925. A swirl of Rosemaling fills my need for a little ethnic input and the culvert sections that the sign sits in will hold flowers in summer, maybe some spruce branches and red velvet at Christmas. We should have opened a bottle of champagne when I finally crossed 'gate sign' off the list.

Foreign exchange

Didsbury High School is pleased to announce the arrival of their two newest exchange students from Guadalajara, Mexico, Nelly Lopez and Alexandra Coronado.

Lopez, 16, is currently in Grade 11, and Coronado, 18, is enrolled in Grade 12, but has already graduated from high school in Mexico.

This is the first time in Canada for both of them.

"I came to Canada because I wanted to learn more English. I will be studying medicine, and all the good books are in English," said Coronado. "It's important to have two languages and English is the universal language."

"I came to learn English and information. In Mexico, it is very important to have English," said Lopez.

They say that the weather, people, places and customs are very different from Mexico and that they really miss their own food.

"The first week was very difficult," said Coronado.

The girls had the choice to go to the States on their exchange as well, but less people speak Spanish in Canada, so they thought they would learn more English here. They also heard that Canada is more friendly.

Why don't we show them how friendly we are in Didsbury by welcoming them to our community with open arms?

Welcome to town

Didsbury should be proud to welcome the new pastor of the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church, Grant Sikstrom, and his wife Debbie to our town.

The couple moved to town a number of weeks ago, and Grant took over his position at the church at the beginning of September. He will be taking over for Richard Pahl.

"The staff at the church has been really supportive in getting me trained," Grant said.

Previously, he was working as the pastor of the church at Oriole Park in Red Deer. He had been there for nine years before coming here.

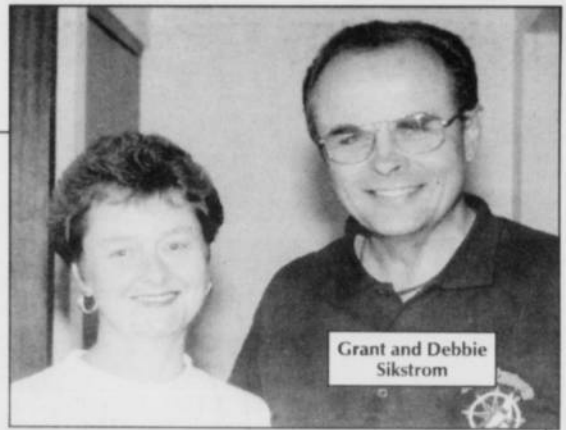

Both Grant and Debbie have a rural background, so they say that Didsbury is a perfect location for them. The couple have three sons, who live in Calgary, Saskatchewan and Florida.

"It's the best of both worlds," Debbie said. "There is a real peacefulness to this town."

Grant says that he had over 300 people in his congregation to get to know, and hopes that it won't take long to meet and learn all the new names and faces.

"We're going to make meeting people a real priority," Debbie said.

"Our hope is to bring a positive message of God's love to the community," said Grant.

Terry Fox Run

Tighten up those shoe laces and get running for a good cause.

The Terry Fox Run is set to hit the streets of Didsbury on Sept. 20.

The Terry Fox Run is an annual event that raises money for finding a cure for cancer.

Terry Fox was a cancer victim who attempted to run across Canada to raise money for cancer research. Fox died before he reached the end of his journey.

Brenda Hemming is the coordinator of the Terry Fox Run here in Didsbury. She lost a son to cancer in 1989.

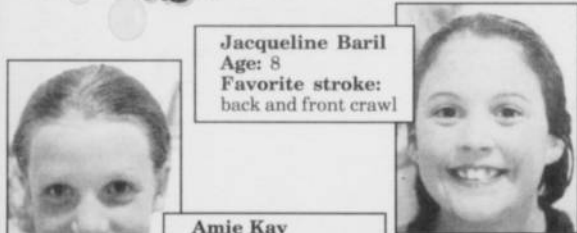

"In some small way, maybe we can be part of a cancer cure someday," Hemming said.

There are two 5 km routes that participants can take. You can run, walk, rollerblade or bike the routes.

There were 43 participants in the run last year and Didsbury has an average of raising $3,358 each year.

"We're giving people an opportunity to be part of (a cancer cure), instead of just asking for money all the time," she said.

Schools cannot start without custodians. Schools cannot operate without custodians. Custodians work very hard all the time, but summer is very hard work for them. They have to get the whole school shiny for when we return in September.

Custodians clean our rooms, polish the floors, fix things and make our school run so we can come here every day. Mr. Howden always has a smile for us.

A special thank you to Mr. Howden, Mr. Abel and Mrs. Metcalf.

Way of Life: How to deal with a busy schedule

By Bev Baum

This being my first article for the paper, I would like to thank the Didsbury Review for allowing space in their paper for the Christian community. The Didsbury and District Ministerial really appreciate it, as well as our congregations.

This past week, one harried parent registering her children at the arena exclaimed, "Ball season just seems to be over and we're back here registering for hockey already!" As I glanced around the lobby, I saw frazzled parents, excited kids and community volunteers hoping there will be enough people who help out in order to have a great hockey season.

Even though parents encourage their kids to become involved in minor sports or music lessons, our unscheduled time begins to fill up. As we run our children from place to place, it doesn't take long to wonder if the hassle is worth it.

As a pastor, I see the struggle families have when busy schedules create conflict with other interests and priorities in life, even apart from one's Christian commitment. It's true not everyone has the same values and priorities in life - whether they be spiritual, physical, emotional, social or financial. The arts, athletics, education and spiritual formation are areas each of us makes choices about - the key to healthy living is to maintain a balance of all good things.

Paul's words to the church at Colosse were, "And whatever you do, whether in word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him." (Colossians 3:17)

Regardless of the complications and hassles with the family scheduling of various sports and arts programs, it is important to express appreciation to the many volunteers - especially the coaches, referees and managers

- who seek to channel our children's excess time and energy into constructive activities. Thank you for accommodating each of our children's ability, stamina, home and church priorities, and values. It isn't easy. Bless you for trying to instill in all those involved, the need for self-control instead of selfish ambition, patience instead of fits of rage, faithfulness even when it gets tough, goodness instead of hatred, and kindness instead of trying to settle the score at another time. The self control you are helping us teach our children will see them through many life events. Sometimes - and maybe too often - we relegate these qualities (the fruit of the Holy Spirit from Galatians 5:22-23) to Sundays only or when it is convenient. The fruit of the Spirit, however, is also present before and in the game, during and after the practice, in our coaching, managing and refereeing and in our conduct as parents.

"Lord help me to see with Your eyes, respond with Your love and encourage others with Your words. As our communities approach a new school year, be our Teacher who instructs us in the ways of godly living and keep us from complaining. Let us be models to our children and may they adopt our values as we live our lives for You by the guidance and power of Your Holy Spirit. Help me to remember that it is You, "who works in me to will and to act accordingly to Your good purpose." (Philip 2:13)

Amen.

Sandwiches are really a fresh start for new owner

WHAT A SANDWICH SHOULD BE
Melissa Phillips prepares a sandwich.

By Ceilidh McClurg

There is a subway in almost every town, and it is not the kind that blows a whistle and rumbles as it passes. However, it is the kind that stops your tummy from rumbling with pangs of hunger.

Subway is the fastest growing franchise in the world, says the new Didsbury Subway's owner, Ed Lengyel. And he has capitalized on the opportunity.

Lengyel purchased the Subway next to the Super 8 Motel in May, to add to his Sundre Subway operation.

He says it has taken some time, but he is starting to feel as though things are getting to run the way he had hoped.

Owning two Subway stores, and living with his wife Karen, and two kids Renee and Jarrod in Sundre, can keep a guy busy.

But Lengyel says, "It is a little busy but it is manageable." He bought the store from his cousin who used to run the Didsbury operation.

In fact, it was his family that got Lengyel into the operation of Subway in the first place. Between, cousins, and sisters, and other relatives, the family owns a total of 11 Subway locations throughout Alberta. Each Subway is independently owned and operated, and his family sure seems to think it is a lucrative venture.

So when Lengyel decided that he wanted to get out of Calgary, where he worked at Telus for 15 years, he looked into opening the sandwich store in a community that he liked, and didn't already have one. Sundre is where he ended up first, but then took over Didsbury because it seemed like a natural progression.

One of the major changes that Didsburians will notice at the local store is that the hours have changed. It is now open at 6 a.m. for breakfast, and Lengyel is running a special to promote that. Right now he is hoping that people on their way to work will stop and pick up a sandwich for their lunch, and he will give them a free breakfast. He says that he hopes that this will make people more aware of the change in business hours.

Another change, one that was handed down from the world headquarters, is that Subway now offers wraps.

Lengyel says that he believes the fast growing popularity of Subway is due to a whole societal change in attitude. They want to eat a more healthy diet, but still have the convenience.

"It is fresh, healthy food, and it is quick service," he says. He has 7 employees at the store who help keep it that way, and who run the store while Lengyel is in Sundre.

One other change that Lengyel would like to make in the store, is actually not within the store itself, but beyond.

"I would like to have the store more involved in community as in sponsorships... I feel that the community is always giving to businesses and thus they have to give something back to the community," says Lengyel. He suspects that he would like to support a sport of some sort.

So what is Subway exactly, one could ask him.

Subway is the way a sandwich should be, he would answer without hesitation.

Horse Whisperer

There are only a handful of "horse whisperers" in the world and Olds College's Extension Department is bringing one of the best to campus. Chris Irwin, from Swift Current, Saskatchewan, is known in the horse industry as the "Canadian Horse Whisperer." He is running two courses through the College.

The first was at the College September 11-13 and the second will be in Okotoks with our partner, the Okotoks Agricultural Society, October 23-25. It is already full, although spectators can attend for $25 a day.

A "horse whisperer" is a person who earns a horse's respect and trust by imitating horse behaviour. By thinking and acting like a horse, instead of "breaking" the horse with force and intimidation, a "horse whisperer" earns the animal's respect and trust. This technique is very popular of late because of numerous books and articles about the practice and the popular acclaim for Robert Redford's recent movie "The Horse Whisperer."

Jennifer Hunder, the College's Equine Extension Co-ordinator, says "Chris is in great demand and we are honoured to have him lecturing here and in Okotoks. His reputation as a teacher is growing because of his apparent magical ability with horses and his methods of demystifying the non-resistance bonding process between people and horses."

Irwin, who has released a book and a series of instructional videos on his training methods, regularly lectures at the Western College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Saskatchewan. He has an extensive background in a wide variety of horse disciplines and has earned 18 National U.S. Championships in riding and driving.

For more information call Jennifer Hunder or the Olds College Extension department at 1-800-661-6537 or (403) 556-8344.

Preschool farm safety program Alberta

By Bill Avison

A central Alberta educator, Marion Leithead, has established a preschool farm safety program (PFSP) with the help of a grant from the Canadian Agricultural Safety Program (CASP) and support from 40 local agencies, institutions and agri-businesses. The safety program originated as a pilot project stemming from Leithead's masters research into rural child care. Her research showed that rural preschoolers were at risk for farm related injuries and fatalities while developmentally appropriate preventative farm safety initiatives were almost nonexistent.

Leithead's hands on, play-based module has been adapted by communities for numerous programs in the past year. The PFSP was used in a rural summer safety program, children's programming at Farm and Trade Fairs, a rural women's conference, a day care and a day home combination kindergarten, early elementary classrooms, and a Hutterite colony.

The object of the program is to raise farm safety awareness to prevent and/or reduce childhood farm injuries and deaths. Of the five Alberta childhood farm deaths in 1996, four were under five years of age. In 1997 unofficial statistics, there were 208 reported childhood injuries. Four of the 17 childhood fatalities were under the age of 10 years. The heartache accompanying these grim and preventable statistics can only be understood fully by surviving parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, family and friends.

The PFSP can help children develop certain habits of heart and mind, a safety sense that will enable them to protect themselves, their family and friends, and their community from harm.

The original focus was preschoolers but the program has proven to be effective for children up to grade five, supplementing either classroom agriculture or the health curriculum. The hands on, play-based farm setting makes it easier for little children to learn about the dangers around the farm. Safety messages accompany a variety of interactive activities including ride on tractors, puppets, blocks, animal and farm toys, paints, stories and dramatic play. Safety concepts regarding moving machinery, large animals, chemicals, flowing grain, water and fire are addressed through developmentally appropriate activities.

Investigator

Cpl. Ed Turco, an 18-year veteran in law enforcement, is the new RCMP livestock investigator for Southern Alberta. He will serve an area extending from Red Deer to the US border.

Turco brings to the position a strong operational background in investigational abilities.

In assuming his new role, Turco says, "I have to stress the branding program is very important. In any matter of investigation that we take to the courts, identification is a very important part of that." He adds, any branded animal, cattle or horses, makes the job so much easier.

He stresses the importance of farmers and ranchers reporting any missing or stolen livestock immediately. He points out the sooner the report is made the faster RCMP can act and take the appropriate actions.

Manure, more is not always better

By Brent Flaten, Soils Management Specialist

Manure can greatly benefit the soil when applied at the proper rates. It provides nutrients for crops and can improve soil structure by increasing the organic matter levels.

Because manure is "natural," people sometimes fall into a false sense of security thinking the more manure, the better. Research shows this is not true, especially when applied repeatedly at high rates.

Dr. Chi Chang, a soil scientist at the Lethbridge Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada Research Station studied the effects of long term manure application with a project starting in 1973. One to two year old feedlot cattle manure was annually applied on both dryland and irrigated clay loam soils. The manure was incorporated with no other added fertilizer. The following results were found after a 10 year period from 1973 to 1983. Some are positive and some are negative.

On dryland, grain yields generally declined at the 24 tonnes per acre rate, and under dry conditions at the 12 tonnes per acre rate.

Organic matter levels on dryland in the top foot of soil were increased from 2% to about 3%, 4% and 4.5% for the 12, 24 and 36 tonnes per acre rates respectively.

Manure had an acidifying effect on the soil. On dryland, the pH in the top foot of soil decreased from about 7.9 to 7.6, 7.4, and 7.2 for the 12, 24 and 36 tonnes per acre rates respectively.

Salinity (salts) in the soil also increased. An EC measurement of over two is considered saline and may start affecting the yield. On dryland, EC's in the top foot increased from 1 to about 3, 4 and 6.5 at the 12, 24 and 36 tonnes per acre rates. A similar trend occurred under irrigation but at lower soil depths due to water leaching the salts down.

Chang's research also pointed out other concerns such as high levels of excess nitrates, phosphorus and sodium. Excess nitrates can cause human and animal health problems when it contaminates water. Phosphorus loading creates algae blooms in lakes. Organic phosphates in manure are much more soluble than inorganic phosphate. This means surface runoff through manure can carry organic phosphates into streams, etc. Excess sodium causes the formation of hardpan (solonchic) soils.

These undesirable effects can be avoided for the most part by applying manure less frequently and at lighter rates. Odour problems and surface movement of organic phosphates can be reduced by incorporating manure. Manure incorporation also reduces ammonia losses making more efficient use of the nitrogen content of manure. Although I have not talked about hog manure, similar trends will occur. Manure is great for the soil ... up to a point.

Changing the Canadian Wheat Board

Producer-Control / Democracy / Accountability / Flexibility

A Big Change

This past June, the Parliament of Canada passed a new law to change the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB). It makes the CWB more democratic, more accountable to farmers and more flexible.

Most importantly, it enshrines the basic principle of "producer control" over what the CWB does and does not do.

The linchpin in the new law is the creation of a modern Board of Directors for the CWB - for the first time in history!

There will be 15 Directors in total, and a controlling two-thirds majority of them (10 out of 15) will be elected by Prairie farmers.

The first elections are being held this fall. The new Directors will come into office before the end of 1998.

A Big Responsibility

The new Directors will not be just "advisors". All of the powers of the CWB will be vested in their hands.

The CWB today is one of the biggest grain marketing organizations in the world.

It is also Canada's 5th largest exporter.

It handles about 25 million tonnes of wheat and barley - worth up to $6 billion - every year, selling into 70 countries worldwide.

Since it markets only western Canadian grain, it can use the distinctive label "Product of Canada" as a powerful symbol of quality.

The CWB has earned a strong, global reputation for dependability, consistency, customer service and technical support.

A Big Opportunity

A Prairie-wide farm vote to elect the 10 new producer-Directors for the CWB is now getting underway.

To ensure complete fairness, a team of independent professionals (KPMG) has been hired to run these elections.

Voters lists will be published before the end of September.

The deadline for candidates to be nominated is October 1st.

Ballots will be mailed out to all eligible voters, beginning about October 12th.

For detailed election information, you can contact the Election Coordinator (KPMG) -

Aqua Jets bring home the gold from Provincials

Jillian Tyler brings home the gold.

By Donna Tyler

The Didsbury Aqua Jets Swim Club had 18 competitors compete at the Provincial Swimming Championships held in Calgary on Aug. 22 and 23 at the Lindsay Park Sports Complex. Six swimmers from the club competed in individual events and 12 club swimmers rounded out the relay roster.

It was unfortunate that technical problems prevented the meet from starting on time. However, after a 45 minute delay, the swimmers were up on the blocks and the races finally began.

The swimmers were pumped and the energy level of competitors and spectators was contagious.

Jillian Tyler qualified at Regionals and this guaranteed her a spot at Provincials in the butterfly, backstroke, 50 and 100m events for 9-10 year olds. Tyler was pumped for her first event which had her competing in the fly. She lived up to the motto "fly to the finish" by picking off her competition and exited the pool with a gold medal. In the 100m freestyle, she placed 8th, in the 50m freestyle she placed 7th, and in the backstroke she came out of the pool with a second place medal, this being a silver to add to her collection.

Cameron Durieux put the pressure on his competition in the 9-10 year old category. Having placed very well at Regionals, Durieux went to the Provincial meet with "gold" in mind. He swam to a gold medal finish in the 100m freestyle. In the 50m free, Durieux earned a second gold medal. One hundredth of a second separated first and second place. In the backstroke, Durieux placed second, adding a silver medal to his collection. To finalize the winnings, a silver medal earned in the IM concluded the day for Durieux.

Ruth Fitzsimonds had the swims of her career in the 15-16 year old category. Already a provincial record holder, Fitzsimonds placed very well at Regionals to guarantee show would be the swimmer to beat at Provincials. Fitzsimonds earned a gold medal for her first place finish in the 400m. She placed five seconds ahead of her closest rival. In the 100m free, she placed 7th. In the 200m free, Fitzsimonds raced to a gold medal performance. In the 200m IM, Fitzsimonds placed third, adding a bronze to her collection of souvenirs.

Ebony Griffin, competing in the 8 and under category, had an excellent day of racing. Her efforts in the pool had her win a silver in the fly, a silver in the 25 free, a bronze in the backstroke and a 13th place finish in the 50m free.

Courtney Sawkins qualified at Regionals in the 25 m backstroke to earn the right to go on to compete at Provincials. Against some very strong competition, Sawkins placed 8th in the backstroke. She competed in the girls 8 and under category.

Jim Palardy swam to a 12th place finish in the 400m freestyle, 8th place in the 100m freestyle, 9th place in the 50m freestyle, and a 6th place finish in the 100m breast stroke. Competition was tough in this age group, and Palardy swam very well in the 17 and over category.

The relay teams swam well. Many of the relay teams are in a "building year" so it is expected that they will be hot next season.

In the 8 and under boys medley relay, Tanner Sawkins, Morgan Smith, Ty Schlichenmayer and Zackery Wray swam at 2:01:37, but were DQed.

In the 8 and under girls medley relay, Brittany Tyler, Ebony Griffin, Courtney Sawkins and Kirsten Kurtz swam to a 1:39:72 - 7th place finish. In the 8 and under free relay, the same team swam to a 12th place finish with 1:33:83.

In the 9-10 girls medley relay, Phoenix Smith, Jenni Neufeld, Jacqueline Hayman and Jillian Tyler swam to a 1:20:38 - 8th place finish. In the free relay, the same team placed 11th win a time of 1:12:47. This will be the team to beat next year.

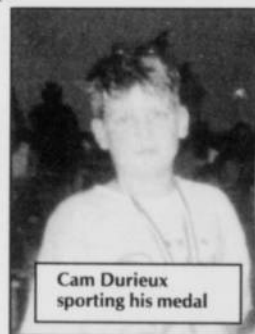

In the 15-16 girls medley relay, Heather Schwandt, Pam Palardy, Jodee Durieux and Ruth Fitzsimonds swam to a time of 2:38:91 only to find they were DQed. In the free relay, the girls swam to a 2:19:19 finish and placed 13th overall. This is the first year in many that the Aqua Jets Club was able to put together a team of 15-16 year old girls for relays. Well done girls.

Coaches Chernow and Jegou are very pleased and proud of the swimmers accomplishments. All competitors competing at Regionals knew they had to swim their hardest to qualify for Provincials. Six Aqua Jet swimmers competed in individual events and came home with 12 medals in total - 5 gold, 5 silver and 2 bronze. Superior accomplishments for a small club. Didsbury and area should be proud of the Aqua Jet representation at Provincials. All Aqua Jet swimmers are proud of their coaches - their accomplishments reflect the talent of the coaches. The Aqua Jets will take a well-deserved rest and wait for the 1999 season to start up.

Hay wins duel with Airwolf in Merritt, BC

Only pride was at stake when Rod Hay drove into Merritt, BC, for the annual Labour Day weekend's Nicola Valley Pro Rodeo.

The five time Canadian champion saddle bronc rider had the Canadian Finals and the National Finals made.

He was in Merritt for one reason only: to get even with Airwolf, the grey outlaw many consider the rankest bucking horse in the world.

Two wolves in an eight-second dance - and this time Hay was still doing the leading when the music stopped.

When it was all over, he dropped to his knees in the dirt, took off his hat and waved at the Verne Franklin-owned gelding as he left the arena - his way of saluting a spirited bucking horse.

The judges were overwhelmed, too. They marked the couple 90 points.

"He's a great horse, that son of a gun. I love him," said Hay. "He tests you every jump. There's no way of ever knowing if you're going to make the whistle."

They'd met three times before. Airwolf had a two-to-one edge. Now, they are even.

"I'd say he was as rank today as he's ever been with me," said Hay. "He had a lot of different moves in him. I'm happy to get evened up with him. I can't wait for the next time."

The last time they met was in the final four of the $50,000 round at the Calgary Stampede earlier this summer. Hay won that duel with an 89-point spur ride.

"It felt to me that he was buckier today than there," he said. "It's hard to make an outstanding ride on a horse like that because he keeps on changing his program on you."

Hay earned just over $1,000. He took the money, of course, but what really got him pumped was meeting the challenge.

The three rodeos over the Labour Day holiday - including Merritt, the Interior Provincial Exhibition and Stampede in Armstrong, BC, and the Okotoks Pro Rodeo in Alberta - were the second last chance for many cowboys and cowgirls in their drive to make the Canadian Finals Rodeo. There remains just three more CPRA rodeos in the 1998 season, all taking place over the Sept. 26 weekend.

Rookie barrel racer Jodi Hollingworth had a record-breaking weekend, easing past the rookie earnings record set by Curtis Cassidy last year. She has now made $27,141 in 1998, cruising past Cassidy's record of $26,693. She also moved within $182 of two-time Canadian champion Debbie Guelly to challenge for the season leader title.

Jacqueline Stojan appears to have locked up her first CFR berth with placings at all three rodeos. She sits in ninth after earning $1,738.

Ontario cowboy Reuben Geelyne made himself a legitimate contender for the CFR with $3,515 in winnings for victories at both Merritt and Armstrong. That moved the young cowboy from 15th to 12th. In the tight bull riding race, only $869 separates 7th place from 12th, so it's anybody's game come the season-ending rodeos in McCord, Lacombe and Hanna.

Also making an impact in the bull riding was rookie Craig McPhee; he placed at all three rodeos for $2,399 to remain first in the rookie standings and second in the bull riding behind last year's season leader, Kelly Armstrong.

AJHL season begins again

The Alberta Junior Hockey League began its 35th season on Sept. 11 with a new league record 14 teams. The Drayton Valley Thunder and the Crowsnest Pass Timberwolves are the league's newest entries and will play in the South Division.

The Crowsnest Pass Timberwolves will help open the 434-game regular schedule with a game in Coleman against the Calgary Royals. The Royals through a series of franchise shifts are the owners of the original franchise from the league's former team The Pass Red Devils. The game brought Junior "A" hockey back to the Pass after a 20 year absence.

The Drayton Valley Thunder opened on the road in Fort McMurray playing the Oil Barons, while the Bonneyville Pontiacs travelled to Lloydminster to play the Blazers, and the Olds Grizzlies played the Fort Saskatchewan Traders in other games on Sept. 11.

The league will have two divisions this year with the top three finishers in each division automatically qualifying for the best-of-seven division semi-finals. The fourth and fifth place finishers in each division will play a best-of-three to determine the fourth semi-finalist.

The AJHL will play without the red line, for offside passes, for the fifth straight season. The league will also continue to have shoot-outs in the regular season games, if teams remain tied after five minutes of overtime.

Each game will play 63 games and the regular schedule will end Feb. 28; the league's annual all-star game will be hosted by the Calgary Canucks at the Max Bell Centre in Calgary on Jan. 30

Grizzly bear attacks rare, group says

"Last weekend's deadly grizzly bear encounter was very unfortunate but fatal bear attacks are very rare," said Sue Toye, spokesperson for the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA).

The group which recently launched a national campaign to teach people how to prevent unwanted bear encounters, hopes their education program will make them even more infrequent.

"Grizzly bear attacks are extremely rare," said Toye. "In Banff National Park, there has only been one injury related to grizzly bear attacks since September 1995 and the park receives over four million visitors each year."

Grizzly bears are solitary, shy creatures. They generally do not seek out human contact. There are an estimated 16,000 grizzly bears in Western Canada; 1,200 living in Alberta. Although sightings of both grizzlies and black bears are common in Alberta, few result in injury. The key is to take precautions to avoid contact with them. Removing any source that may attract a bear such as food wastes and being alert for signs of bear activity in the wild will reduce the chance of an encounter with a bear.

In an information booklet offered free to the public by WSPA as part of their campaign to reduce conflicts between the public and bears, practical tips are provided to hikers, campers and cottagers to reduce the risk of encountering bears. Those interested in receiving a free guide can call 1-800-363-WSPA (9772).

The guide includes the following tips for hikers:

- Talk loudly while walking through heavily wooded areas where visibility is limited or near streams where hearing may be limited. If a bear hears you coming, it will usually avoid you.

- Be alert for bear signs. Look for bear scat, fur on the bark of trees or overturned rocks. Leave the area immediately if you come across a dead animal.

- If you encounter a bear, do not make eye contact and do not photograph the bear. Do not approach or feed the bear.

- If a bear starts to follow you, don't run. Walk slowly away. You can drop an object such as your backpack to distract the bear. Only drop food as a last resort if you don't have anything else to distract the bear.

- Keep all dogs on a leash and under control. Dogs may be helpful in detecting bears but they may also fight with bears or lead them back to you.

- Avoid wearing perfume or scented hair products.

What campers can do:

- Deposit garbage in nearby garbage dumps or in your vehicle until it can be dumped.

- Do not keep any food, even chocolate, or other items that have an odour such as toothpaste or perfume in your tent.

- Store all food in your vehicle or suspend from two trees at least six to eight metres apart and four metres off the ground.

- Try to avoid bringing canned food with strong odours such as tuna and salmon. Burn food scraps after each meal and wash tins after eating.

- Wash all dishes immediately after each meal and do not keep the clothes you wore while cooking in the tent. Store these clothes in your vehicle or suspend with your food.

- Look for any bear signs and avoid any natural food areas for bears before you set up your campsite. If you see any garbage or food strewn in the bushes, dead animals or berry bushes filled with fruit, find another spot to pitch your tent.

- Set up your camp away from natural paths or streams as bears are likely to use these routes.

WSPA's aims is to educate the public how to avoid bear problems and to reduce the number of bears that become habituated to human food sources. Labelled 'nuisance bears,' these food-conditioned bears are usually destroyed. Launched nationally this summer, BearSafe is an educational campaign designed to protect both bears and people.

"If you are attacked by a grizzly bear, do not resist; roll into a tight ball on the ground with your fingers laced behind your neck and do not move until you feel it's safe to do so," said Toye. "This position will protect your face, neck and vital organs from the attack. The grizzly bear usually leaves you alone once it realizes that you are not resisting."

 MARLENE (HARRISON) JONES.
 be with God at 61 years.
 Mom.

You soothed the aches of human pain.
 You served in love and not for gain.
